

Aerospace Senior Intern Job description, 2021

At Roland Berger, we are looking for a PhD or Masters student to join our ranks as a Senior Intern to contribute towards an exciting project in the topic of Sustainable Aviation.

In particular, the Senior Intern will have the following responsibilities:

- Assisting with conducting scenario analyses for post-COVID recovery of the aviation and aerospace industries
- Assisting with conducting scenario analyses for how the aerospace and aviation industries may undergo the sustainability transition, considering CO₂ and non-CO₂ effects
- Modelling of the evolution of the future aviation ecosystem and aerospace industrial complex under various scenarios
- Assisting with the preparation and delivery of scenario and strategy workshops
- Assisting with the preparation of reports and presentations summarising the results of the above work

The role will be London based, but may also require travel to Europe for a limited number of meetings and workshops. The internship duration is flexible, lasting either 3 or 6 months, depending on your availability.

We are looking for team players with strong analytical and communication skills. Furthermore, you should have:

- An excellent academic record
- Relevant practical and international experience
- Strong analytical and creative problem-solving skills
- An entrepreneurial spirit and a winning personality

Please apply for this unique position by emailing a cover letter and CV to nikhil.sachdeva@rolandberger.com at latest by 20th October 2021. That this will be a paid position and all candidates will go through an interview process.
